CONTENTS

WEB CASES  xv
PREFACE: The Case Study Method as a Pedagogical Technique  xix
STUDENT INTRODUCTION: Using Cases to Learn About Organizational Communication  1
PRACTICE CASE: The Sale  Joann Keyton  5

SECTION 1 ORGANIZATIONAL CULTURE  11

Chapter 1  How Do You Get Anything Done Around Here?  13
Marian L. Houser and Astrid Sheil
A new employee discovers that what is said and what is done in the organization are vastly different, with the effect being the stifling of innovation in the organization.

Chapter 2  Communicating and Leading Change in Organizations  20
Christina M. Bates
During a period of significant organizational change, a relocated manager is challenged to empower her employees, instill a sense of trust in a rapidly changing environment, and improve her organization's performance.

Chapter 3  Managing a Merger   26
A New Zealand auto glass company focuses on leadership communication during a period of major organizational change.

Chapter 4  Merged, Incompatible IT Cultures   33
Jeanne S. McPherson
After technology units at a large state university merge, complexities of organizational culture arise when competing subcultures are forced to integrate.

Chapter 5  Your Attitude Determines Your Altitude   38
Erika L. Kirby
A company-mandated mountain climb raises issues of ethics, inclusion, and corporate control for participants.

Chapter 6*  Growing Pains   46
Jessica Katz Jameson
A new member to a nonprofit's board of directors discovers the challenge of overcoming employees' resistance to change.

Chapter 7*  How Dare He Try to Manage Our Talk   53
Ryan S. Bisel and Amber S. Messersmith
After terminating the executive director of a nonprofit, the board chairman mandates employees remain silent about the perplexing turn of events.

SECTION 2  ORGANIZATIONAL TECHNOLOGY   57

Chapter 8  Caught Online   59
Jensen Chung
An American working in the Asian-Pacific branch of a large company is criticized openly on the company's intranet, generating multiple conflicts.

*New to the Third Edition
Chapter 9  The Difficulties of Virtual Leaders  67
Alexander Lyon
Virtual executives face communication difficulties when attempting to lead employees in a dot-com organization.

Chapter 10  Knowledge Is Power  73
Melinda M. Villagran and Mary Hoffman
With senior managers personally resistant to using technology, a relatively new employee is given a mandate to substantially increase technology use at the top of the organization.

Chapter 11  The Emails in the Clinic Initial Services Department  78
Heather L. Walter
A superior-subordinate relationship disrupts a productive department with ongoing conflict.

Chapter 12*  Finding a Home for Communications Technologies  83
Craig R. Scott, Laurie K. Lewis, Jennifer D. Davis, and Scott C. D’Urso
A group of technology consultants is somewhat surprised to find what tools are used and what defines a community of users when the group provides organizations serving the homeless with various communication technologies.

SECTION 3  TEAMWORK AND GROUP PROCESSES  89

Chapter 13  Reorganizing Human Resources at ASP Software  91
Donald L. Anderson
An organizational development consultant looks for ways to assist a vice president in reorganizing the human resources department at a high-tech organization.

Chapter 14  Teaming Up for Change  98
Maryanne Wanca-Thibault and Adelina Gomez
Multidisciplinary teams work together in a new organization to intervene in serious domestic violence cases.
Chapter 15* Lessons Learned 109
MJ Helgerson
The leadership team of a successful manufacturing organization struggles with conflict, decision making, and meeting practices.

Chapter 16* Taking Charge 115
Joann Keyton
A professional services company organizes a high-risk, high-reward, cross-functional team to create an innovative strategic plan.

SECTION 4 DECISION MAKING AND PROBLEM SOLVING 121

Chapter 17 How Much Does Passion Count? 123
Stuart L. Esrock, Joy L. Hart, and Greg B. Leichty
A nonprofit organization faces the difficult task of finding a new leader in the midst of its most important public policy initiative.

Chapter 18 Permission to Walk 132
Michael W. Kramer
An employee faces bureaucratic problems and ethical dilemmas as he tries to organize a fundraising event to assist an employee suffering from multiple sclerosis.

Chapter 19 For the Good of Many 141
Nancy M. Schullery and Melissa Gibson Hancox
Faced with layoffs for the company’s most productive manufacturing team, leadership introduces a controversial alternative work program in the nonprofit sector.

Chapter 20 A Matter of Perspective 150
Paige K. Turner and Robert L. Krizek
A new director of patient care in the practice arm of a university’s medical school faces patient dissatisfaction, needs for new processes, and space limitations as she attempts to reverse a declining revenue trend.
Contents ix

Chapter 21  The Expert Facilitator  158
Mary E. Vielhaber
A facilitator faces opposition to the processes he is using in a strategic planning session.

Chapter 22*  Corporate Social Responsibility Versus Greenwashing  164
Astrid Sheil and Heather Gearhart
A marketing communication employee faces an inherent ethical dilemma when her company tries to use a social responsibility issue to enhance the company’s image and improve its bottom line.

Section 5  THE INDIVIDUAL AND THE ORGANIZATION  171

Chapter 23  Bob’s Dilemma  173
Erica L. Kirby
An expectant father faces a career dilemma when considering how to ask for paternity leave.

Chapter 24  Working Without Papers  179
Shawn D. Long
Immigrants and undocumented workers face harassment and discrimination, causing their supervisor to question next steps.

Chapter 25  Corporate Counseling  187
Steven K. May
An employee, who has sessions with a corporate-sponsored counselor, learns she has lost her job and is concerned information from her counseling was part of the organizational decision process.

Chapter 26  Managing Multiple Roles  197
Caryn E. Medved and Julie Apker
An employee managing multiple roles during an organizational merger faces stress, burnout, and work-family conflict.
Chapter 27  No Laughing Matter  209
Linda B. Dickmeyer and Scott G. Dickmeyer
A young newcomer begins his career at an established organization and must recognize and adapt to the norms of a strong corporate culture.

Chapter 28  Not on My Sabbath  217
Joy Koesten
Faced with a surprising role conflict, an employee discovers the challenges of superior-subordinate relationships, specifically those relating to face work, impression management, and power.

Chapter 29*  The Aggrieved Mediator  222
Christine E. Cooper
A student activities coordinator at a university explores the grievance process after she applies for a management position but is denied the job.

Chapter 30*  An Officer First and a Nurse Second  227
Colleen Arendt
A military nurse experiences conflict when her sense of duty as an officer is at odds with her sense of duty to her patients.

Chapter 31*  Finding the Right Associate  234
Leslie Reynard
The recruiting and hiring efforts of a law firm reveal gender politics and ethical challenges.

Chapter 32*  Conflict Around Performance Review  243
Elayne J. Shapiro
An employee evades feedback, and neither boss nor employee is able to influence each other effectively.

Chapter 33*  There’s a New Sheriff in Town  246
Lori J. Joseph
A female sheriff’s deputy reflects on the challenges and rewards of her job and imagines how things might change with the election of the first female sheriff.
Chapter 34* Resisting Disability Epithets  253
Carol B. Mills
When Stacey returns to work after giving birth to a baby with an intellectual disability, she learns how painful disability slurs can be.

Section 6 ORGANIZATIONAL DIVERSITY  259

Chapter 35  Where Does It Hurt?  261
Cynthia A. Irizarry
A female medical doctor finds being the first female in a medical practice group contentious and fraught with serious challenges.

Chapter 36  A Case of Mistreatment at Work?  270
Mary M. Meares and John G. Oetzel
An employee perceives mistreatment while her coworkers consider their cultural references to be teasing.

Chapter 37  The Penis People  278
Diane K. Sloan
Female consultants face obscene and sexist behaviors from large numbers of trainees, challenging their abilities to handle the training classes.

Chapter 38  Navigating the Limits of a Smile  282
Sarah J. Tracy
A cruise ship staff faces challenges in creating expected customer service under difficult circumstances.

Chapter 39*  Putting My Best Foot Forward  293
Aparna Hebbani
Cultural and gender differences lead to communication problems in a hiring interview.

Chapter 40*  Berating the Bow  300
Andrew Jared Critchfield
A Japanese female demonstrates intercultural incompetence at the Washington, D.C., and Tokyo offices of a transnational organization.
Chapter 41* Islamophobia at Work  305
Shawn D. Long
Diversity communication issues arise working with Muslim or Muslim-looking employees in post-September 11 organizations.

SECTION 7 ORGANIZATIONS AND THEIR STAKEHOLDERS  315

Chapter 42* Inviting Public Input  317
Stephen C. Yangbluth and Zachary P. Hart
Consultants consider the ethical issues involved in the process of gathering and incorporating public input into a utility company’s planning process.

Chapter 43* Give Me Information or I Will Blog  324
Patty C. Malone and Keri K. Stephens
During the 2007 pet food recall crisis, pet owners are confused and angry about the deaths and illnesses of their pets due to conflicting and confusing information, so they turn to blogging on the Internet.

Chapter 44* Community Civility  332
Rod Troester
Economic development efforts are complicated by a climate of incivility among politicians, resulting in a chamber of commerce-sponsored community-wide civility initiative.

Chapter 45* The Sago Mine Disaster  338
Carlos E. Balhana and Deanna F. Womack
The 2006 explosion at the Sago mine created crisis, image, and issue management challenges for a fictional public relations consultant.

SECTION 8 ORGANIZATIONAL CRISIS  341

Chapter 46* More Questions Than Answers  343
Amanda M. Gunn
Navigating and negotiating closure of a state mental hospital reveal how the disruption of termination is experienced by organizational members.
Chapter 47* Ethics in Big Pharma 350
Alexander Lyon and Robert R. Ulmer
One of the biggest scandals in pharmaceutical history occurred when Merck downplayed the cardiovascular risks of its popular pain drug, Vioxx.

Chapter 48* Forced Collaboration 357
Beth Eschenfelder
Facing pressure from its primary funder to form an administrative service organization, a collective of neighborhood family centers struggles in the early stages of group process and consensus building.

ABOUT THE EDITORS 367
ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS 368
DETAILED CASE CONTENT INDEX 371
WEB CASES

Available at www.oup.com/us/keytonshockley

W1. Just Part of the Crop
Joann Keyton
Having held jobs for one year, two friends disclose about their job-seeking experiences.

W2. A Decision to Change?
Theodore E. Zorn
A team charged with a significant knowledge management project runs into opposition and quick cancellation of the effort.

W3. Celebration of Diversity
Joann Keyton
An Asian manager questions why his new organization promotes workplace diversity by singling out one racial group.

W4. Change, Coalitions, and Coping
Joy L. Hart, Shirley Willihnganz, and Greg Leichty
Management change fractures a widely accepted family culture, forcing the retired founders to return.

W5. Contemplating My First Year
Joy L. Hart
A new employee discovers that what is said and what is done in the organization are vastly different, with the effect being the stifling of innovation in the organization.

W6. Downsizing at Tata Steel
Rajeev Kumar
Downsizing of an organization challenges management in communicating with employees and union representation.
W7. Discord at the Music School
Terri Toles Patkin
Following a popular leader, the new music director faces resistance to increasing rigor in the classes and improving organizational systems.

W8. Dr. Jekyll and Pastor Clyde
G. L. Forward
Findings from an organizational communication audit generate controversy with a church’s minister and board.

W9. Engineering Difference
Patrice M. Buzzanell, Edward J. Coyle, Leah H. Jamieson, and William C. Oakes
Faculty and industry advisers face continuing issues when creating multidisciplinary design teams to tackle social and local community problems.

W10. Left Out of the Loop
Niranjala Weerakkody
Lack of intranet access for some managers creates serious problems for information dissemination and contributes to perceptions of inequities.

W11. Maintaining Faith
Christine S. Davis
A new director of the Interfaith Center for Aging is challenged by volunteer participation, board management, and future directions.

W12. Not a Typical Friday
Marifran Mattson
New leadership wanting change fires a 28-year employee, resulting in legal action and concerns from peers with much less experience.

W13. T Link Enterprises
Trudy Milburn
A global sales team faces cultural issues in attempting to create a global sales model to explore untapped opportunities.

W14. The Challenges of Radical Change
Andrew J. Flanagin
A consultant is challenged to manage the implementation of a new system, overcoming skill deficiencies and resistance to change.

W15. The Fun Team
Carolyn M. Anderson and Heather L. Walter
An established firm is overwhelmed with e-commerce opportunities, necessitating the creation of an expanded and somewhat unconventional team to meet volume demands.
W16. Long-Distance Cultural Integration
Gerald L. Pepper and Gregory S. Larson
   Human resources leadership is challenged to assist integrating different organizational cultures utilizing mostly virtual communication strategies.

W17. Where Do We Go From Here?
Edward C. Brewer
   During a period of rapid change, an email conflict replaces face-to-face discussion of the potential adoption of a new system.

W18. Why Does This Always Happen?
Philip Salem
   A low-performing employee resists feedback in an organization unable to confront issues and problems effectively.

W19. The First Day at Work
Julie Davis
   A new employee orientation session causes a new hire to question her decision to work for the company.

W20. When a Good Thing Goes Bad
Anne P. Hubbell
   A drug company faces a crisis over issues of creativity, differences in protocols, and disagreements among senior staff members.