Chapter 1

Introduction to Criminological Theory

What Is Theory?

Types of Criminological Theories

Theories of Making and Enforcing Criminal Law

Theories of Criminal and Deviant Behavior

Criteria for Evaluating Theory

Logical Consistency, Scope, and Parsimony

Testability

Empirical Validity

Concepts of Causality and Determinism

Quality of Empirical Tests of Theory

Usefulness and Policy Implications

Theory and Ideology

Emphasis on Empirical Validity and Application of Theories

Summary

Chapter 2

Deterrence and Rational Choice Theories

Classical Criminology and the Deterrence Doctrine

Deterrence: Certainty, Severity, and Celerity of Punishment

Severity and Fitting the Punishment to the Crime

Certainty and Celerity of Punishment

Specific and General Deterrence

Modern Deterrence Theory

Studies of Deterrence

Objective Measures of Deterrence

Perceptual Measures of Deterrence

Do Criminal Sanctions Deter?

Deterrence and Experiential Effects

Modifications and Expansions of Deterrence

Concepts

Rational Choice Theory

Deterrence and Expected Utility

Research on Rational Choice Theory

Deterrence and Criminal Justice Policy

Scared Straight, Shock Incarceration, and Boot Camps

Routine Activities Theory

Felson and Cohen: Offenders, Targets, and Guardians

Empirical Validity of Routine Activities Theory

Routine Crime Prevention and Precautions

Summary

Chapter 3

Biological and Biosocial Theories

Introduction

Lombroso and Early Biological Theories

Lombroso's Theory of the Born Criminal

The Criminal as Biologically Inferior

Recognizing the Inadequacies of Early Biological Theories

Modern Biological and Biosocial Theories of Crime and Delinquency:

Interaction of Biological and Environmental Variables

Neurobiological Approaches to Crime

Biochemistry: Testosterone and Criminal Aggressiveness

Neurophysiology: Mental Functioning and Delinquency

Neurophysiology: ANS Functioning and Arousal

Genetically Transmitted Criminal Susceptibility: Behavioral and Molecular

Genetics

Adoption Studies

Twin Studies

Evolutionary Psychology and Criminality

Empirical Validity of Biological Theories of Criminal Behavior

Policy Implications of Biological Theories

Summary

Chapter 4

Psychological Theories

Psychoanalytic Theory

Personality Theory

Personality Traits

The Psychopathic Personality

The Five-Factor Model

Psychological Counseling in Delinquency

Prevention and Treatment

Wayne County Clinic

Cambridge–Somerville Youth Study

Youth Consultation, Youth Board, and Maximum Benefits Projects

Pilot Intensive Counseling Organization (PICO) Project

Community Treatment Project: California's I-Level Program

Summary

Chapter 5

Social Learning Theory

Introduction

Sutherland's Differential Association Theory

Akers's Social Learning Theory

Development of the Theory

The Central Concepts and Propositions of Social Learning Theory

Differential Association

Definitions

Differential Reinforcement

Imitation

The Social Learning Process: Sequence and Feedback Effects

Social Structure and Social Learning

Empirical Validity of Social Learning Theory

Research on Relationship of Criminal and Delinquent Behavior to Social Learning

Variables

Research on Social Learning in the Family and Delinquency

Research on Peers and Group Contexts in Crime and Delinquency

Differential Peer Association

Delinquent Gangs

Selection and Socialization in Peer Association

Perception and Behavior in Peer Association

Research on Social Structure and Social Learning Theory

Applications of Social Learning Theory in Prevention and Treatment Programs

Highfields and Essexfield

The Pinehills Experiment

The Teaching Family Model

Oregon Social Learning Center (OSLC)

Andrews's Experiments and Model of Treatment and Prevention

Meta-Analyses of Cognitive-Behavioral Programs

Other Prevention Programs

Summary

Chapter 6

Social Bonding and Control Theories

Introduction

Early Control Theories

Reiss's and Nye's Theories of Internal and External Controls

Reckless's Containment Theory

Sykes and Matza: Techniques of Neutralization and Drift

Hirschi's Social Bonding Theory

The Central Concepts and Propositions of Social Bonding Theory

Attachment to Others

Commitment

Involvement

Belief

Measures of Social Bonding Concepts

Empirical Validity of Social Bonding Theory

Gottfredson and Hirschi: Self-Control Theory

Low Self-Control as the Cause of Criminal Behavior

What Is the Relationship Between Self-Control Theory and Social Bonding Theory?

Testability of Self-Control Theory

Research Indirectly and Directly Testing Self-Control Theory

Hirschi's Social Bonding Modifications of Self-Control Theory

Policy Implications of Control Theories

Social Bonding Elements in the Social Development Model

Policy Implications of Self-Control Theory

Summary

Chapter 7

Labeling and Reintegrative Shaming Theory

Introduction

Labeling as a Process of Symbolic Social Interaction

The Label as an Independent Variable in Crime and Deviance

Empirical Evidence on Labeling Theory

Implications of Labeling Theory: Juvenile Diversion Programs

Braithwaite's Reintegrative Shaming Theory

Reintegrative Shaming, Restorative Justice, and Faith-Based Programs

Applications of Restorative Justice

Theory and Philosophy of Restorative Justice: Reintegration and Rehabilitation

Effectiveness of Restorative Justice Programs

The Past and Future of Labeling Theory

Summary

Chapter 8

Social Disorganization Theory: Social Structure, Communities, and Crime

Introduction

Early Statistical Studies of Crime

Social Disorganization and the Urban Ecology of Crime and Delinquency

Research on Social Structure and Crime Rates

Restatements and Research on Social Disorganization Theory

Community Projects and Policies Based on Theories of Social Disorganization

The Chicago Area Projects

Other Policy Implications of Social Disorganization Theory

Summary

Chapter 9

Anomie and Strain Theories

Introduction

Classic Anomie/Strain Theories

Merton's Theory of Social Structure and Anomie

Cohen: Status Deprivation and the Delinquent Subculture

Cloward and Ohlin: Differential Opportunity and Delinquent Subcultures

Miller: Focal Concerns of Lower Class Culture

Research on Classic Anomie/Strain Theories

Are Crime and Delinquency Concentrated Among Lower Class and Minority Individuals?

Gangs and Delinquent Subcultures

School Dropout and Delinquency

Perceived Discrepancy Between Aspirations and Expectations

Contemporary Anomie/Strain Theories

Messner and Rosenfeld's Institutional-Anomie Theory

Agnew's General Strain Theory of Crime and Delinquency

Failure to Achieve Positively Valued Goals

Removal of Positively Valued Stimuli

Confrontation With Negative Stimuli

Programs Based on Anomie and Subcultural Theories

The Boston Mid-City Project

Mobilization for Youth

Policy Implications of Contemporary Anomie/Strain Theories

Summary

Chapter 10

Conflict Theory

Introduction

Law Is a Type of Social Control

Consensus and Functionalist Theories of Law

Conflict Theory of Law and Criminal Justice

Empirical Validity of Consensus and Conflict Theories of Law and Criminal Justice

Research on Legislation

Research on Public Opinion on Crime and Criminal Justice

Research on Social Threat

Research on Extralegal Variables in Criminal Justice Decision Making

Research on Racial Profiling

Conflict Theory of Criminal Behavior

Empirical Validity of Conflict Theory of Criminal Behavior

Policy Implications of Conflict Theory

Summary

Chapter 11

Marxist Theories

Marxist Theory

Marxist Theory of Law and Criminal Justice

Instrumentalist and Structuralist Marxism

Empirical Adequacy of Marxist Theory of Law and Justice

Marxist Theory of Crime

Bonger: Early Marxist Theory of Crime

Quinney: Class, State, and Crime

Modifications of Marxist Theory

Is Crime the Result of a Capitalist Economy?

Policy Implications of Marxist Theory

Summary

Chapter 12

Radical and Critical Theories

Introduction

Left Realism

Cultural Criminology

Peacemaking Criminology

Summary

Chapter 13

Feminist Theories

Introduction

Feminist Theories of Criminal Justice

Empirical Validity of Feminist Theories of Criminal Justice

Feminist Theories of Crime

Women's Liberation and Female Crime

Masculinity Hypothesis

Opportunity Hypothesis

Economic Marginalization Hypothesis

Power-Control Theory

Patriarchal Society and Crime

Masculinities and Structured Action

Gendered Pathways and Gendered Contexts

Empirical Validity of Feminist Theories of Criminal Behavior

Policy Implications of Feminist Theories

Summary

Chapter 14

Integrating Criminological Theories

Theory Competition Versus Theory Integration

Varieties of Theoretical Integration in Criminology

Conceptual Integration

Akers: Integration by Conceptual Absorption

Cullen and Colvin: Social Support and Coercion

Propositional Integration

Elliott's Integrative Model of Strain, Bonding, and Learning

Krohn's Network Analysis

Thornberry's Interactional Theory

Tittle's Control Balance Theory

Life-Course Criminology

How Successful Has Theoretical Integration Been in Criminology?
